

STORIES FROM THE FIELD...

.....this chair is just mind blowing! Dining room chair transfers is like 50% of what homecare OTs/PTs do.”

I have been struggling pushing my husband in and out of the dining table since he became disabled a year ago. I saw your add on Facebook and knew it was something that would not only help my husband but myself also.

The struggle is over, and I want to say this chair has been a lifesaver. Being a caregiver is a struggle, that being said I would recommend the Chair Caddie to anyone who is dealing with the same issues I have.

I love the new chair and it will help with keeping my husband at home where I can care for him.

My husband has Alzheimer’s Disease.

I want to tell you how wonderful we think the chair is. It meets all of the needs of a person who cannot move about without assistance. The arms on the chair are sturdy enough for my husband to push himself up and the wheels and lever to turn the seat make it so much easier for caregivers and I to move him about.

This chair has been a life-saver. We actually have four of the T2 mobility chairs. My husband has progressive Parkinson’s and needs 24-hour assistance. The chair has been life-altering. I have recommended this chair to so many people who are affected in the same way he is.
